

Rutgers Food Innovation Center, NJ Business Incubation Network Meetings to Build NJ-Israel Innovation Cluster

Bridgeton, NJ -During the week of June 21, Lou Cooperhouse, director of

They will be hosted by Olive Grove Ventures (OGV), an international business development consultancy.

The NJ-Israel Food Innovation Cluster is a joint initiative between the FIC, OGV, and Tel-Hai Academic College.

“We are extremely excited at this first step in creating a NJ-Israel Food Innovation Cluster. Business clusters are a key component of economic development and job creation.”

With the presence of Choose New Jersey, Inc., the goal is to share the message that New Jersey is the best place to do business.

“International outreach gives us the opportunity to nurture relationships with executives, industry groups and government officials.”

In addition, Cooperhouse and Paolini will meet with the leadership of several government and privately-funded organizations.
